“Fumigant Marking Requirements”

comments: This very important subject. The public needs to be informed regarding the use of fumigants. Dock workers and tow-motor drivers are very much at risk with the unknown chemical residues inside of containers. Not only are the hazard warnings important but the workers need to know what to do to protect themselves. These chemicals can also "seep" into adjacent containers stowed on the vessel and pose a hazard that may not be identified by marking.
